What is a High-Risk Pregnancy?

A pregnancy is considered high-risk when the health of the mother, baby, or both is at risk. It does not always mean something will go wrong, but it requires closer monitoring and professional care. Some common causes of high-risk pregnancy include:

- Medical conditions in the mother such as diabetes, hypertension, thyroid disorders, or heart problems.
- Pregnancy-related complications like gestational diabetes, preeclampsia, or preterm labour.
